

Clonakilty Garda Station visual guides

Attending for interview

Supported by

SuperValu

Developed by

Gardai is the Irish word for Police. The Gardai work to make sure that everybody is safe. Sometimes the Gardai might need to talk to people and ask them questions.

This is the Clonakilty
Garda Station.

Supported by SuperValu

Developed by

These are the Garda cars
parked out side the Garda
Station

This is the waiting area.
I can sit here while I am waiting for the Garda to talk to me.

Supported by SuperValu

Developed by
AS I AM .IE

I can ask to use the Relaxation box if I need help to stay calm.

Supported by SuperValu

Developed by

When the Garda is ready to talk to me, they will call my name.

Developed by

Supported by

SuperValu

Answering a Garda's questions is called in Interview. I can bring someone into the interview with me like my parent or caregiver. If I do not understand something I can ask for help. I do not have to answer the Garda's questions if I do not want to,

This is the interview room. It is important that I tell the truth when speaking to the Gardai. I can ask to take a break if I need to.

An Garda Síochána
Ireland's National Police & Security Service