

Fernhill House Hotel

visual guides

Staying at the Hotel

Supported by

SuperValu

Developed by

AS I AM .IE

This is the entrance to Fernhill House Hotel. I go inside the building here.

Supported by

SuperValu

Developed by

Inside, there is a reception desk. I go here, and ask the staff member for help or to check in to my room. If there is nobody at the desk, I can ring the bell.

Supported by
SuperValu

Developed by

There is a lobby beside the reception where I can sit or wait.

Supported by

SuperValu

Developed by

There are stairs or an elevator that take me to the rooms. I must use one of these.

Supported by
SuperValu

Developed by

When I get to my room, I go inside. I use my key to open the door. There is a toilet in my room, along with a bed, TV, chairs, a table and a place where I can make some tea. This is where I sleep.

Supported by

SuperValu

Developed by

Fernhill House Hotel has a big garden. I go outside for a walk. There is seating here.

Supported by
SuperValu

Developed by

To visit the gardens, I can walk or ask for a lift in the golf buggy. A staff member will drive me to the gardens in the golf buggy if I ask them.

Supported by
SuperValu

In the garden,
there is a big marquee

Supported by
SuperValu

Developed by

There are pathways and lots of grass. There are trees and flowers.

Supported by

SuperValu

Developed by

I can walk along the bridge to see some more.

Supported by

SuperValu

Developed by

The Bar

I can enter the bar through the entrance of the Fernhill House Hotel.

Supported by
SuperValu

Developed by

The bar has seating.
I can sit here.

Supported by

SuperValu

Developed by

The staff member can be behind the bar. I can go to them and ask for the drink I want. They will get it for me. I pay for my drink at the bar and wait for my change and receipt.

Supported by
SuperValu

Developed by

The bar has toilets. I can use these. There is a hand-dryer on the wall which is noisy. I do not have to use this.