

John Lowney Jewellers visual guides

Supported by

SuperValu

Developed by

AS I AM .IE

John Lowneys Jewellers is in Clonakilty. I am going there today.
The sign for John Lowneys is marked clearly outside the door.

Supported by
SuperValu

Developed by

I am welcome to go inside.
I will see jewellery on display in cabinets and other items such as clocks, watches and gifts. I am welcome to look at them.

Supported by

SuperValu

Developed by

John owns the shop and he works there. He or anyone else who works in the shop can answer any questions I may have. They will show me something I would like to look at more closely. I just need to ask.

Supported by
SuperValu

Developed by

If I want to buy something,
I go to the till to pay.
It is close to the shop exit.

Supported by
SuperValu

Developed by

I might have to wait for a staff member to come to the till, so I can pay. I can pay with money or with my card.

Supported by

SuperValu

Developed by

AS I AM .IE

When I have paid I say thank you and goodbye. Then I can leave the shop the way I came in.

Supported by
SuperValu

Developed by

We might have to wait so we can pay. We pay the lady in the shop with money or a card and she puts our new book in a bag.

Supported by

SuperValu

Developed by

When we have paid we say goodbye and leave the shop.