

My visit to Clonakilty Bookshop

visual guides

Supported by

SuperValu

Developed by

AS I AM .IE

Today I am going to Clonakilty Bookshop. When I see the sign over the shop I know I have arrived. We can go inside.

Supported by
SuperValu

Developed by

Clonakilty bookshop is a shop where people go to buy books.
When I go inside, I will see lots and lots of books on tables in front of me and on shelves on the walls.

Supported by

SuperValu

Developed by

AS I AM .IE

Sometimes there may be other people in the shop looking for books too. This can make the shop busy and a little noisy. There is plenty room for everyone.

There are many kinds of books in this shop, some for adults and some for children on lots of different topics. These books are all in different shelves. Each shelf is marked. If I am looking for a special book, I follow the signs I know where to look.

Supported by
SuperValu

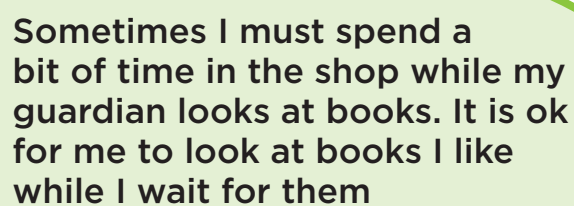

Developed by

The lady who works in the shop is there to help me. If I don't know where to find a book she can show me where to go.

SuperValu

AS I AM .IE

Supported by SuperValu

Developed by

Sometimes my guardian will decide that they want to buy a book or might buy a book for me. We must go to the till to pay.

Supported by
SuperValu

Developed by

We might have to wait so we can pay. We pay the lady in the shop with money or a card and she puts our new book in a bag.

Supported by

SuperValu

Developed by

When we have paid we say goodbye and leave the shop.